Why are we doing this? Because we do not have a choice. We must put our focus on the people who are in need right now. There is a growing Kindness Movement, and you can be a part of it. The world needs more Kindness. Would you be willing to help today?

What is the Kindness Cloud Foundation?

The Kindness Cloud Foundation is a small, tax-exempt, nonprofit foundation with a big vision. We engage in activities to promote the Kindness Cloud. All our resources, tools, and ideas are provided free of charge.

What is the Kindness Cloud?

Kindness is a value as old as human history. More recently, in addition to its other meanings, the word “cloud” has come to refer both to the interconnected, online world and to something that is broadly and generally accepted. When we invite people to Join the Kindness Cloud, we are inviting people to Join a Global Kindness Movement, not a membership organization

What is the Kindness Cloud’s Purpose?

- To increase the Amount of Kindness in the world.
- To spread a Culture of Kindness around the world.
- To spark a Global Kindness Movement.
- To encourage everyone to Unite Around Kindness.

How Will We Know If We Have Been Successful?

No one can ever truly know the result of any Kindness Effort. This is because Kindness can have Ripple Effects that last for a long time. And this is true for the Kindness Efforts of individuals, groups, or organizations. All that can ever be known is that if one person's life has been made easier, then the effort has been worthwhile, and the world has been changed for the better.

What Are the Kindness Butterfly Effect or the Kindness Ripple Effect?

These are names for the statistically provable idea that a small action (e.g., the flapping of a butterfly's wings or the dropping of a pebble in a pond) can produce a large effect (e.g., a weather event on the other side of the world or a huge wave), even though the results of that specific effect may never be known or impossible to measure or trace.

What Can I or My Group or Organization Do?

Everyone already has the Power of Kindness. Everyone is already on their Kindness Path. Anyone can answer a Kindness Call to Action. Anyone can help to Create a Kinder World. And this is true for people, groups, and communities, for schools at any level, and for organizations, both for-profit and nonprofit.

What Does It Mean to Be on a Kindness Path?

There are Different Kinds of Kindness, and they are often called Steps Along a Kindness Path. Most importantly, a Kindness Path Never Ends. It is a Lifetime or an Organizational Experience.

The first Kinds of Kindness Steps (Self-Kindness, Acts of Kindness for Others, and Creating Kindness Communities) are for the Direct Benefit of the Recipient. This is how most people think of Kindness and what most people do. These steps are often called Retail Kindness.

The other Kinds of Kindness Steps (Teach Kindness, Spread Kindness Forward, and Lead Kindness Projects) are called Wholesale Kindness. In simplest terms, Retail Kindness is directed at Being Kind to People, whereas Wholesale Kindness is directed at creating more or broader Kindness Institutions or Activities, which would then lead to More Kindness Benefitting More People.

In fact, there are many other Kindness Steps along any Kindness Path, and the world needs both Retail and Wholesale Kindness.

How Do I/We Start?

Besides doing specific Acts of Retail Kindness, like donating money, providing food or shelter, giving clothing or other necessities, or creating organizations to do these things – which we strongly encourage – there are an unlimited number of ways to Spread a Culture of Kindness. The activity itself may not seem to be related to Kindness (e.g., you could teach an online class on any subject, in which case your teaching activity itself is the Process of Kindness).

Groups and organizations, such as homebound teachers and young people not in school, can help Teach Kindness. People and organizations interested in an area, such as Alleviating Hunger, can unite around this common cause, from sharing stories to working together. In this time of trial and dislocation, more and more schools, companies, and groups are sponsoring and encouraging people to engage in Kindness Projects.

Imagine if more groups, communities, and companies engaged in, and shared their stories of, Different Kinds of Kindness activities, projects, and steps. This would inspire others and would increase the amount of Kindness in the world. Not only are the possibilities endless but think of the Kindness Ripple Effect that this would create.

There is no one size fits all. Not only will every Kindness Path be different, but within your own Kindness Campaign you will have different components and contexts. You may, for example, treat your family differently from your friends. And you can Share Your Kindness stories forward to encourage others.

- Create a Kindness Campaign

Think of yourself as creating an Outreach Campaign to increase interest in, and awareness of, both the idea and value of Kindness, as well as a Specific Kindness Project, like raising money, making food, building shelter, community service, etc. There are three major parts in your Kindness Campaign: your messages, your methods, and your audiences.

1. Kindness Messages – What will you do, say, tell, or post, to encourage others to Join Your Kindness Campaign to Spread Kindness? What, if anything, will you suggest that they do?
2. Message Methods and Channels – How will you reach people? Traditional media or online social media, calling or mailing people, and so on.
3. Message Audiences – Which group or groups of people will you target? Your teachers, classmates, or students? Your friends, family, neighbors, or colleagues?

- Create a Kindness Project

When it comes to serving others, we can do so much more working together than we can alone. So, invite your friends to join you in your Kindness Service Project. Whether you gather food for a local food bank, donate clothing, or give of your time, your team can make a huge difference in the lives of others.

- Encourage People to Act

Share ways to help others in need. Whether you are a teacher encouraging your students to engage in a service project, a business owner hosting a volunteer day, or a student creating a Kindness Culture in your school, your guidance can change lives and can create a ripple to reach people that you could have never reached on your own.

- Spread Kindness on All Your Social Media Channels.

These days, we are all communicating on social media. We can use these tools to spread messages of hope, empathy, and compassion. If you really want to have a huge impact, you can foster a Culture of Kindness that can reach millions. It is just that easy. You can use the free inspirational posts on the Ideas tab of our website, or you can create your own.
